

Jude Daniels

Director at Large

Since 1998, Jude Daniels has worked in the oil and gas sector as both senior legal counsel and as a senior Aboriginal Relations advisor and manager. She has worked with both Canadian companies and Indigenous communities extensively on regulatory matters and the economic, social and environmental effects in Indigenous communities.

Jude is a part-time hearing commissioner with the Alberta Energy and a former part-time member of the Federal Social Security Tribunal. The focus of her private law practice is: regulatory law, socio-economic agreement negotiations, Aboriginal consultation, environmental law and traditional knowledge matters.

Jude holds degrees in Law, Social Work, and is a yoga instructor. She is a member of the Law Society of Alberta, the Indigenous Association and the Métis Nation of Alberta. Jude lives in Canmore with her family.